THE NEW WOMAN AND THE OLD MAN

You recollect Horace Greely's disastrous colloquial passage at arms with Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

It was shortly after the war, and the ladies had presented, before some public assembly, their claims for equal participation, with their brothers, in the affairs of government.

Upon rising to reply, "I presume you are aware, madam," said the polemical M. G., who was evidently somewhat 'feeling his (Quaker) oats', so to speak, "that the ballot goes with the bullet; how are you prepared to discharge that duty?" "The same way you did," answered the redoubtable, pioneer, suffrage crusader, "by sending a substitute." Naturally, the minutes of the meeting show no completion of the remarks of that hitherto indomitable, forensic fencer.

The discomfited newspaperman's question was more characteristic of his day than would be Mrs. Stanton's reply, at the present time. For while any proposed enlargement of woman's sphere, a few decades ago, was wont to be met by a contemptuous masculine, "What can she do?" today, upon her petitioning for more responsibility, a more pertinent inquiry would be: "What, indeed, has she not proven equal to?"

Ex-Senator Elihu Root, the great and inexplicable opponent of the cause, even goes so far as to hope that, if the men do not rise to the call of arms with the utmost alacrity and unanimity, the women will shame them by doing so.

If, as has been alleged, the result in Maine is to be attributed to the elder statesmen "taking to the woods," in order to let their on-coming successors bear the responsibility of the new order it was proposed to introduce, we do not attach the significance to it that some do.

Those who are building their hopes on the ancient proverb that "as Maine goes, so goes the country," should be reminded of the fact that there was a time when the same state could be counted on to go "hell-bent for Governor Kent."

In general, we believe—as is the case with all who are championing reform, the ladies will be more successful with the rising political generation, who are usually more hospitable to innovation and less intolerant of change. Witness the espousal of their cause by the Western states which, as is proverbial, were settled by the younger and mentally growing men.

Possibly the inexorableness of the international crisis, which seemingly will not brook other concern, may, until such time as it is resolved, delay a hearing upon woman's proper political status.

But even so. In our opinion, the heroic way she is rising to the present, crucial war emergency, in seconding and substituting her brother's most stressful trials, when she then knocks for admission to the electorate, she will be met by a new man, a man of infinitely more generous and chivalric mould. One who will not be disposed to require an additional passport to the halls of privilege, from one who so nobly has passed through the iron furnace of duty; but who, if never before, will proudly concede that no honors are too high for conferring upon that "sex whose presence civilizes ours."—O.N.P.

WEST GUILFORD

Fred Perdon spent a day in Cleveland on business.

Alfred Stone of Lakewood was a visitor at the home of S. R. Dundas one day this week.

Porter Crawford and wife, Claud Crawford and wife, Dr. Crawford and Miss Belle Crawford motored to Genoa, Ottawa county, to visit Sue Null. She will spend a week.

Hugh Brumbaugh of Cleveland is spending his vacation in Seville and the Pike visiting his old neighbors. He is always welcome.

D. Winkler, formerly of Guilford, is visiting at the home of Earl Gordon and neighbors, for a week before he goes to Missouri to live.

Hugh Grafton of Akron was looking after his farm this week.

Dan Yost and Will Parton visited at the home of Leonard Easton Sunday in Akron.

F. Elcker had visitors from Westfield one day this week.

John Fulton and wife, Ike Fulton, Willie Reich and wife, and Mrs. Sarah Fulton started Tuesday for Michigan via auto, to visit an uncle.

Henry Ripley drilled a well 59 feet, 18 of which were in rock and got an abundance of water.

Frank Fulton built a new silo, and filled it last week.

Abel Bostwick is building a straw shed at the west end of his barn, and a covered yard.

Who broke that cow's leg with an auto? Was it a party of joy riders.

Mrs. Edward Becker and family of Creston were visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Pernoa.

Mel Homer of Sterling visited at his father's home Sunday. His wife and son Bill came with him.

NORTH-WEST GUILFORD

Mrs. Jesse Roby returned to her home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps of Nova spent Sunday with their grandson, John Lea. His sister Ida of Crestline and Mr. Lane, an uncle from Oklahoma, also visited with him at the same time.

David Winkler and family visited among old neighbors, as they expect to start for Missouri in their automobile soon.

T. R. Garn and Earl Koppes with their wives spent Wednesday in Canton.

Willie Reich and wife and J. E. Fulton and wife expect to start for Onondaga, Mich., Thursday morning. They are going by auto and expect to be gone about a week.

WADSWORTH

The four Ohio companies, Match, Inferior, Salt and Boxboard will discontinue the payment of bonus to employees after Oct. 1. The feature was inaugurated six months ago, each person receiving 10 per cent. bonus at the end of three months. Dissatisfaction of employees who preferred money each pay day instead of every three months is given by the companies as the reason. The last bonus will be paid on Oct. 20, but an increase of ten per cent in wages will be effective on Oct. 1. Commencing Oct. 29, the factories will begin working nine hours per day, from 7 to 11:30 a. m. and from 12:30 to 5 p. m., eastern time. Employees are now working ten hours per day and will receive approximately ten hours pay for nine hours work.

The 100th anniversary of the Reformed High church was observed Saturday and Sunday when two sermons were held each day. An excellent program had been arranged for all the sessions and there was special music. The church was founded in 1818 by Reformed and Lutheran members and up to seven years ago, both denominations used the building, the Lutherans disbanding at that time.

The funeral of little Geraldine Hawk, who was killed by an automobile near her home, Thursday evening of last week, was held from the residence of her parents, Wm. Hawk and wife, Saturday afternoon. Rev. Wolfe of the Methodist church conducted the services after which the little victim was laid to rest in Woodlawn cemetery.

Andrew Strotter died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Whitman, Tuesday, Sept. 11, at the age of 72 years, death being due to hardening of the arteries. Funeral services were held Thursday morning from the Catholic church, conducted by Father Ryan, and the remains were interred in Woodlawn. Mr. Strotter is survived by three daughters residing in Wadsworth—Mrs. Adam Haller, Mrs. Ben Witchey, and Mrs. Charles Whitman—and three daughters and two sons in Akron.

OBITUARY

Emma Louisa, oldest child of James R. and Betsey F. Carpenter, was born in Readsboro, Bennington county, Vermont, April 18, 1843, and died September 15, 1917, aged 74 years, 4 months and 28 days at the home of her son Charles, at the old home farm in Lodi, where she had lived since her marriage, with the exception of four or five years which she spent with her son George in the same neighborhood.

Her girlhood was spent in Vermont. At the age of eighteen she, with her parents and brothers and sister, came west to Ohio, living for a short time near Cleveland, then coming to Medina county, where she has since made her home.

On June 1, 1865, she was united in marriage to William R. Griffin. Going to the present home they cared for her husband's parents until their death.

To this union seven children were born. All but one lives to mourn a mother's death. Clarence died in young manhood.

Her husband preceded her in death February 26, 1906. She was always a home loving body, caring more for the home life than anything else.

She was a member of the Methodist church at Lodi, but ill health has kept her from attending services. She has been an invalid and cripple for the past several years.

One of her chief comforts was that she could use her eyes and hands, doing much fine needle work and doing it for her friends.

She always had a horror of becoming helpless and being a burden to some one. But she was helpless only about two days, and in the dusk of the evening the spirit gently took its flight to the God who gave it, leaving the tired body to its eternal rest.

Funeral services were held at the home on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, Rev. L. L. Fisher. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

THE RED CROSS

Once in a blue moon, "bread cast upon the waters is found after many days." Frisinstance: Before war was declared in our country, a Red Cross Day collection taken at the banks, netting seventy-five dollars, was turned over to Cleveland chapter, which probably kept one-half and sent the other half to Washington, according to Red Cross law. Recently Cleveland Chapter returned to Medina County Chapter a check for this half she had retained, and for the memberships which had been sent in at various times, amounting to forty-one dollars and fifty cents. Medina county appreciates the square deal and has acknowledged this favor from Cleveland Chapter.

One of the songs our soldiers in camp are singing, begins, "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag, and smile, smile, smile." Those who are helping to win the war at home, may well adopt the song for their own, and add to it, give, give, and work, work, work, for in the merry month of October we are to harvest a grand crop of war privileges; the Liberty Bond bobs up serenely for another whirl, tho that is an investment, not a charity.

Medina County's Red Cross apportionment for the war fund must be met, and "it were better if it were done quickly." Some of the county's best business men are to give their time, and efforts; surely they will meet with smiles and generosity from those who harvest good crops and live in comparative comfort.

Dame Rumor has it, that that almost extinct bird, the Medina Board of Trade has arisen from the ashes, and is about to try its wings for flight, on a Red Cross Benefit, which spells work, work, work, and smile, smile, smile, and give, give, give.

Speaking of giving, have you been asked to give your old straw hat to be pressed into mattress stuffing for the brave boys in khaki? (Cleveland P. Dealer.)

The salvage department of Red Cross work is coming more and more to the public eye. The following clipped from the letter of a Medina county boy to a relative here, tells of the work in Los Angeles: "The salvage department appeals to people because it deals with the things of little and mostly of no value to the giver. We started by saving tin foil; even the street sweepers had little bags with the Red Cross on them attached to their carts. Care takers in the parks carry bags and gather it. Various office forces are collecting it. One office sent 18 lbs. on August 31. Red Cross gets from 10 cents to 40 cents per pound at the smelter. Newspapers are gathered and sold for $17 per ton. Old tires and tubes are turned in and sold according to condition, (here is where I shine); I sold $17 worth last Saturday. Salvage in this city sold last week for $32."

Miss Wheatley, principal of Garfield building, is considering a plan by which the Junior Red Cross work of Medina might embrace this Salvage department, so we are not only to save meat, wheat, and turkish towels, but we must also save pipers, rubber, tin foil, pieces of brass, incandescent lamps, cold cream jars, and old bottles, to be gathered by the Junior Red Cross.

Until further notice, the Knitting Committee will be at Red Cross rooms Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. No yarn has been received, but the committee will be glad to give instructions and help those who buy for themselves. The following instructions have been received from headquarters:

FEDERAL RULING ON CRESTON ONION CASES

At Boston, on Thursday of last week, Federal Judge Morton sustained the indictment against the National Onion association, under which a Creston man, Mr. Jordan, was indicted. An other of the charges against the onion men, that of alleged unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade, was thrown out on a technicality.
